Notice of End of Support for Flexible Die Bonder DB830

We would like to express our sincere appreciation for your continued use of our die bonding equipment.

Since the first DB830 was released to the market in 2013, it has been used by many customers. Thirteen years have passed since the first DB830 was shipped, and it has become increasingly difficult to obtain parts due to the discontinuation of production by manufacturers, especially for Therefore, we regret to inform you that support for the DB830 will be discontinued as of the end of June 2027, except for the following three items.

1. Equipment Control Units / Modules

Support will continue until the parts are no longer available.

2. Mechanical Parts

Support for mechanical parts will continue; however, it may be discontinued if the required parts become unavailable, depending on the manufacturer's production status.

3. Software Update

For equipment running Windows XP, support will end in December 2026. For further details, please refer to YQ2-260003.

For equipment running Windows 7, support will end in June 2027. For further details, please refer to YQ2-260004.

We sincerely appreciate your long-standing use of our products.

We look forward to your continued support and business in the future.

Sincerely yours,
